Measure Performance and Optimize with Tracking Software

We do not want to sound harsh or demoralizing, but many software platforms fail to deliver results. However, it does not matter how good or feature-rich they are. A smart program should help brand marketers to evaluate user performances and track engagement with crucial program metrics.

While some programs do that well, they don't offer real-time monitoring. NextBee has designed Tracking Software as a unique solution to the brand's need to track comprehensively and optimize their program for better results.

NextBee's technology expertise makes it easy to integrate the tracking software with any 3rd party software running already. The software can track shares made on social media sites, referrals generated, emails opened, referral links clicked, conversions, and many more.

No matter how many offers you build and what rewards your users earn, NextBee's Tracking Software will monitor every activity. A fully customizable dashboard surfaces engagement patterns and tracking details to make them easily accessible.

You can inform your customers of rewards and the behavior you want to develop, thereby, rewarding activities most profitable to your business. Real-time tracking makes monitoring even more useful and exciting. With this software, marketers gain valuable insights into the messages, offers, and rewards, which generate higher engagement.

Here's what NextBee has to offer with its Tracking Software:

- Complete customization around the look and feel of your website
- Integration with any 3rd party software
- Seamless and quick integration
- Custom Support Portal for assistance
- Data security
- 24x7 Technical Support
